Utilities are natural monopoly service providers and, therefore, subject to unique financial requirements and regulations. Unlike competitive service providers, tariff rates and cost recovery mechanisms are subject to unique principles and differing levels of regulatory oversight. This introductory class provides a brief overview of the underlying financial concepts for utilities with a focus on Investor Owned Utilities.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

The goal of this introductory course is to provide a working knowledge of the fundamentals of finance in a regulated utility environment that can be applied in the real world. The content will help to understand the concept of capital recovery, strategic planning, regulatory environment, and cost recovery mechanisms.

INSTRUCTOR
