This GT summit will explore the different types of applicable rate structures and alternatives available and under consideration by utilities and utility regulators for the bulk purchase of renewable energy — especially by large commercial, industrial, and institutional customers. Utilities, state regulatory bodies, large power consumers and project developers with active or anticipated green tariff arrangements and related cases will find this a must-attend forum to evaluate their options and the path forward.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

- Identify the various utility green tariff rate designs and mechanisms in use
- Indicate common elements of regulatory costs, benefits and externalities that can be reflected in “green tariff” rate structures
- Evaluate strategic utility challenges in properly establishing renewable energy program designs and revenue targets
- Examine avoided cost and levelized cost (LCOE) calculation metrics and assumptions associate with green tariffs
- Assess the elements essential for business partner(s) to collaborate with utilities and regulators for successful formulation and adoption of green tariffs
- Illustrate salient best practices, opportunities and challenges through GT case studies
