OVERVIEW

Pipeline safety is a rapidly developing and increasingly important area of law and focus of the gas and oil industry. In light of recent well-publicized incidents, the Department of Transportation (DOT) and state agencies have ramped up enforcement and have taken steps to strengthen existing regulations, close loopholes, and add new safety initiatives and requirements. These changes create uncertainty and impact project planning and new construction. This course, instructed by an attorney with unique experience in pipeline compliance and litigation, will highlight changes in the law and explain how companies can adapt to this dynamic situation.

This course will specifically focus on the statutory and regulatory regime governing pipeline safety. This includes an emphasis on the nature and scope of the substantive and procedural requirements, recent pipeline initiatives that went into effect, and changes on the horizon. We will look at major initiatives that directly affect pipeline companies, such as integrity management. We will also discuss emergency management and TSA pipeline security guidelines.
