Supreme Court strikes down key sections of Arizona immigration law S.B. 1070, upholds "show me your papers" provision
The US Supreme Court, in a 5-3 decision, issued its much anticipated decision in Arizona v. United States, striking down three provisions of the Arizona law S.B. 1070, and upholding a fourth. Enforcement of these four contested provisions of the law, officially known as the Support Our Law Enforcement and Safe Neighborhoods Act, had been enjoined by a temporary injunction issued by the US District ...

Top 5 Cases From the Supreme Court's 2011 Term
The Supreme Court's 2011 term was a busy one as usual. Several high-profile decisions were handed down, including one that may define President Obama's presidency. Along with the Obamacare decision, other major Supreme Court cases involved state immigration powers, lying about military medals, prisoner rights, and GPS tracking. Here are our top five cases from the 2011 term: SCOTUS Update ...

Obama Spokesman Says President Disagrees with Supreme Court Obamacare Decision
On CNN this morning, President Obama's campaign spokesman Ben LaBolt said that the president disagrees with the Supreme Court's decision on Obamacare. LaBolt says the president believes Obamacare is a penalty, not a tax, as the Supreme Court called the health care law. CNN'S SOLESDAD O'BRIEN: Does he believe this is a tax, or does he believe it's a penalty? He actually hasn't said yet, as I'm sure ...

Supreme Court Limits Union Fees On Non-Members
In last week's decision in Knox v. SEIU, the Supreme Court limited unions' ability to charge non-members for political activity. In several states, workers can opt out of union membership but not out of union dues, because the unions are given exclusive right to bargain for all workers and, thus, to charge for their services. Because of the decision, if a union decides to temporarily increase dues ...

US states to opt out of Medicaid expansion of health care law
Home World News United States Governors of more than a dozen of the 50 US states have indicated they may not participate in the expansion of Medicaid under the Obama-backed health care legislation. The expansion of Medicaid under the overhaul has been estimated to account for 17 million of the 30 million to gain insurance under the overhaul beginning in 2014. The US Supreme Court ruling last week ...

California Supreme Court rules in child death case

LOS ANGELES – Welfare officials can take children from parents who negligently cause the death of a son or daughter, such as failing to place them in a car seat, even if there was no criminal harm, the California Supreme Court ruled. The court ruled Thursday that a "breach of ordinary care" with fatal results is enough reason for child welfare agencies to act because it poses an inherent concern ...

California poised to approve nation's first 'anti-Arizona' law

California's Legislature is poised to become the first in the nation to pass an "anti-Arizona" law instructing police to release illegal immigrants instead of handing them over to the federal government if they haven't committed serious crimes. The law could put a Democratic state at odds with a Democratic president whose administration has counted on local-federal police partnerships to find and deport ...
